

THIS SITE

GOALS

SITE EDUCATIONAL

Active Methodologies and Digital Tools

- The site was chosen as a product precisely because it is about modern and current education. Thus, through the site, anyone who is interested in knowing the methodologies available on it, from anywhere in the world, can have access to this information.
- The product developed has as its target audience teachers who work in all basic education. Since this is a site that all teachers have access to, each teacher must adapt the proposals to their classes, according to the curricular component they teach, the age group of the students, and the content to be worked on.

- Contribute to the reflection about the lesson planning of basic education teachers;
- Provide constructivist ways to teach classes;
- To offer step-by-step planning and application of these teaching methodologies and tools;
- To provide basic lesson plans that each teacher can adapt based on their teaching demands and the learning demands of the students.

APPLICATION

- Since it is a socialized teaching method, we will work on intrapersonal and interpersonal relationships;
- The teacher will divide the students into groups;
- After the groups are divided, each one will receive a theme;
- The students will have to, together, research and debate about the theme received;
- On the day of the seminar presentation, with or without the use of resources - such as slides, posters, images - the students will present the knowledge acquired and the experiences arising from the research and debate process;
- It is worth pointing out that, in this teaching strategy, the student is an active agent and researcher.

APPLICATION

- Since it is a socialized teaching method, we will work on intrapersonal and interpersonal relationships;
- The teacher will divide the students into groups;
- After the groups are divided, each one will receive a theme;
- The students will have to, together, research and debate about the theme received;
- On the day of the seminar presentation, with or without the use of resources - such as slides, posters, images - the students will present the knowledge acquired and the experiences arising from the research and debate process;
- It is worth pointing out that, in this teaching strategy, the student is an active agent and researcher.

This teaching methodology places the student as the main informant, and the teacher assumes the role of teaching coadjuvant, not least by acting as a guide and facilitator. In this way, the dynamic process of orientation leads the student to the desired direction for the organization and deepening of the themes.

And, the student is enabled to construct his own knowledge.

